Following the tremendous success of his trip to China, President Nixon once again outflanks his critics by undertaking yet another venture in personal diplomacy . . . a journey to a remote and hostile corner of the world never before visited by an American President, a nation with which we have no diplomatic relations. Let us join correspondent Walter Chronic as he narrates.

NIXON'S TRIP TO HARLEM

STORY • STEPHEN BARNETT ART • PETER BRAMLEY

As the President's motorcade carries him from the landing site to his guest quarters, what strikes us most strongly is that this visit seems to be making no impression on the citizens of Harlem. They just seem to be going about their business as usual.

President Nixon has now been taken to one of Harlem's finest hotels. This is a resort so luxurious that most guests can only stay for an hour or less. Each guest is graciously attended by his own private hostess. These hostesses are trained to take care of the most basic needs of the guest, and expect quite a large tip.

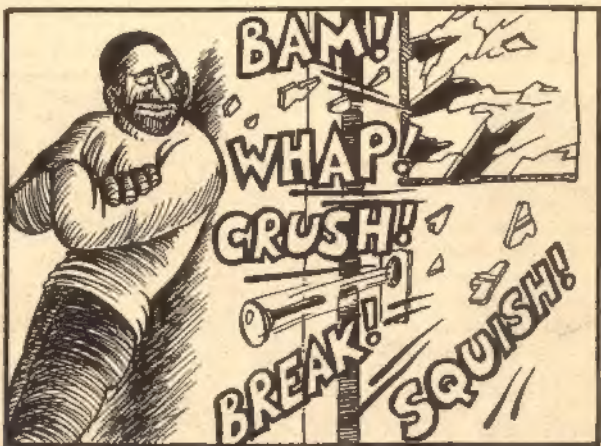

The President wastes no time in getting down to business. His staff, headed by Dr. Henry Kissinger, prepares him in depth for the day's meetings.

Amid stringent security precautions, Nixon arrives at Mosque No. 7, headquarters of Harlem's Black Muslims.

Having gained admittance to the mosque, the President asks to see the Hon. Elijah Muhammad, unquestioned head of the Nation of Islam. Unfortunately, the Messenger of Allah is not available, as his headquarters is in Chicago—a fact which escaped the notice of Nixon's staff during the months of preparation for the visit. Nevertheless, talks go on, behind closed doors.

At the end of several arduous hours of talks, the President and his hosts emerge to announce a preliminary agreement: in order to further understanding between the two powers, all federal employees will be required to sell copies of Muhammad Speaks.

While the President is engaged in the serious business of the visit, Mrs. Nixon wins the hearts of the ordinary people with her own inimitable style of person to person diplomacy. Here she visits the kitchen where a state banquet is being prepared for the delegation.

We also accompanied Mrs. Nixon on her visit to a Harlem school. Here she looks on as youngsters learn the art of Acupuncture. This is the unique form of folk medicine whereby these people are able to eliminate all pain by simply inserting needles in the skin along the appropriate "Meridian" or "Mainline". This technique is so successful that it has been adopted for use in the U.S. Armed Forces.

Harlem's leaders offer sumptuous hospitality to the official party. With Dr. Kissinjit's minute advice as to protocol, President Nixon toasts his hosts with Quotations from Uncle Remus.

After the banquet, hosts and guests proceed to the Apollo Theatre to see a performance by Sly and the Family Stone, a company of very high reputation. Unfortunately, on this occasion they were too high to play Mr Nixon described the four hour wait for refunds, during which no announcement of any kind was made by the management, as "a most welcome respite" from the taxing official schedule.

In a parting gesture of good will, the people of Harlem present the President with a pair of rats for the Washington Zoo. A pair of bald eagles was to be given to Harlem in return, but the species was found to be extinct. Instead Mr Nixon presented to his hosts a handsome silver and copper medallion depicting the bald eagle on one side, and on the other the profile of George Washington with the words "In God We Trust."

So the President's visit to Harlem draws to a close amid feelings of good will and harmony. Stripped to its essentials, the mission has brought little in the way of concrete developments; only time will tell if the new spirit of friendship will have a warming influence on U.S.-Harlem relations.

THE PARENT ADDICT OR

HOW TO TELL IF YOUR PARENTS ARE ABUSING DRUGS . . .

THE PROBLEM: WHAT CAN YOU DO?

Most responsible children are familiar with the much-publicized trend towards parental drug abuse and addiction, but in too many cases not enough is known to enable children to spot their own grownups' part in these tragic habits.

Perhaps your Parent is just dabbling in drugs, or using them fairly regularly, OR is already addicted. If such is the case, there's no need to despair, or lose hope. Government officials are constantly improving methods of detection and an ever increasing body of information is now available to the concerned child who would like to check for drug abuse in his own progenitors.

IN EVERY HOME THERE IS AT LEAST ONE (USUALLY MORE THAN ONE) ADULT ABUSING AMPHETAMINES COMMONLY REFERRED TO AS "SPEED." AMPHETAMINES ARE INGESTED IN THE FORM OF DIET-PILLS, PEP PILLS, STIMULANTS, AND COFFEE OR "JAVA." SOMETIMES CALLED "CAFFEINE" OR "CAF" IS THERE A COFFEE "STASH" IN YOUR HOME? HOW OFTEN IS IT REPLENISHED?

TOBACCO IS ONE OF THE MOST DANGEROUS, MOST ADDICTIVE, & MOST COMMON HORRORS OF THE PARENTAL DRUG CULTURE. TO DISCOVER IF YOUR PARENTS ARE INHALEING "NICOTINE," "TAR," AND "CARBON MONOXIDE" LOOK CAREFULLY FOR DARK, SUNKEN EYES, LOSS OF BREATH, YELLOW TEETH AND FINGERS AND ASH-TRAYS SURROUNDINGLY "PLANTED" IN INCONSPICUOUS PLACES AROUND YOUR HOME.

USE OF "TRANQUILIZERS" AND "SLEEPING PILLS" ARE PERHAPS NOT AS WIDESPREAD AS ALCOHOL CONSUMPTION, BUT THEY CONSTITUTE A SERIOUS THREAT NEVERTHELESS USUALLY OBTAINED THROUGH "SHRINKS" OR "DOCS", THESE DRUGS COME IN PILL OR CAPSULE FORM. THEY ARE INVARIABLY HABIT-FORMING AND WHAT ONCE MAY HAVE STARTED AS A CASUAL USE SOON ESCALATES INTO DAILY USE AND ABUSE.

"SIMULATED ALCOHOL TRIP"

ADULT DRUG SUBCULTURE

Without question, the favorite drug of offending adults is alcohol, which is usually manufactured from fermented grains or fruit and is openly available in many communities in any number of forms, such as "juice," "whiskey," "hootch," "booze," "mad liquor," etc

An unsuccessful attempt to stop this heavy drug trafficking was made in our own country during the 1920's and 30's but it proved so unpopular that the effort was discontinued. While a nationwide act on of this sort is probably impractical at this time, individual children CAN do their part in detecting alcohol abuse in their own parents. Remember! Good living starts in the home

PHYSICAL SYMPTOMS

Both alcohol (or "liquor" as it sometimes is called) and tranks are generally in ected orally v.a the mouth. A set of easily recognizable physical signs point to regular parental drug abuse.

RED NOSE

SLURRED SPEECH

NOXIOUS BREATH

VOMITING

DIZZINESS AND UNSTEADINESS

PSYCHOLOGICAL SYMPTOMS

More subtle signs of adult "upplng" are revealed in the way in which the drugs affect the mind. If an adult is in a difficult situation at work or at home, he may be driven to take refuge in drugs. This flight from reality is a serious sign of deeper psychological problems. Yet recourse to a psychiatrist cannot be recommended because these same psychiatrists are often the source of the drugs to begin with. A vicious circle, indeed.

ALERT CHILDREN ARE TO LOOK FOR THE FOLLOWING:

LOWERED INHIBITIONS

SEXUAL IMPOTENCE

SHORT TEMPER AND ARGUMENTATIVENESS

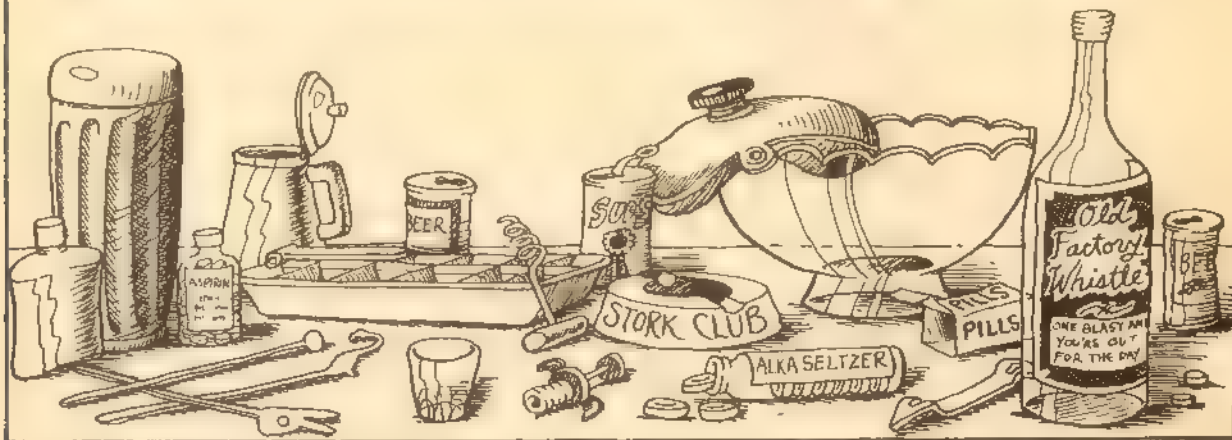

IMPAIRED JUDGEMENT

DRUG ABUSE EQUIPMENT AND ACCESSORIES (POLICE EXHIBIT)

The proliferation of accessories for the alcohol pill abuser makes it difficult for the concerned child to keep track of all the equipment that might turn up in his parent's possession and therefore clue him in to possible parental drug addiction. The following are some of the items with the appearance and slang terms for each of the following:

YOUR PARENTS' ACQUAINTANCES AND "HANGOUTS"

Finally, Wise offspring would do well to keep an eye on their parents' friends and hangouts, often known as "watering spots." Aunts often gather for an evening in popular locations where drugs are available and their abuse pronounced, known as "Bess" Taverns" or "Grills," these places are as common as churches in some towns.

Social pressure plays a big part in parental "drinking" and "trunking," and a parent's choice of friends deserves scrutiny. Overweight, unshaven and foul-mouthed, these "pals" usually trap the previously clean parent in a cycle of poker games, bar hops, bowling nights, and the like. Children should do all they can to isolate the parent from such social contacts.

If you had a needle in your mother's arm, she is either a junkie, a diabetic, a seamstress or a record player.

One of the hottest issues in the country today is that of women's rights. Women from all walks of life are up in arms, be they pro or con, but hopefully "equality and justice for all" shall win out in the end. With that premise in mind, you can be sure no stone will be left unturned so DRUG magazine brings you:

Rock 'n' Roll forecast 1984

Superstars come and superstars go. Where's Brenda Lee NOW? Chubby Checker? Kookie? Who knows? Furthermore, who cares? But some rock stars do manage to stay in the public eye long past their initial popularity, and 1984 won't be any exception. Frinstance!

John Lennon will have replaced Johnny Carson as night time TV king

Mick Jagger and The Rolling Stones will be everyone's favorite Times Square New Year's Eve hosts

However, other present rock stars will have forsaken show business for other life styles altogether

Bob Dylan will have moved to Israel and become a rabbi

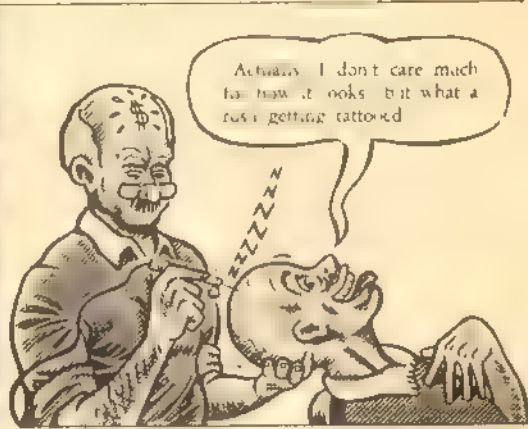

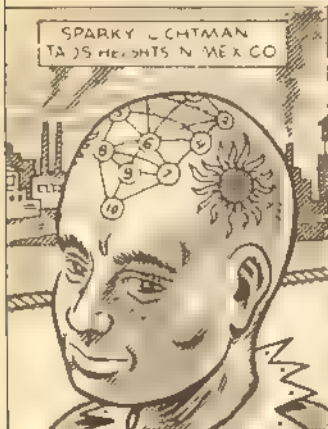

Neil Young will be a successful cattle rancher in Argentina

The hair style in 1981 will be robot. Shaved skulls will predominate, with scalp tattoos flourishing.

Dating trend setters in 1984 will have the whole upper portion of their skulls removed and colored pastels. Lenses inserted.

Female impersonation is big right now, what with Alice Cooper and ... But that'll have been passe long since by 1984. What'll be big then will be Male impersonation!

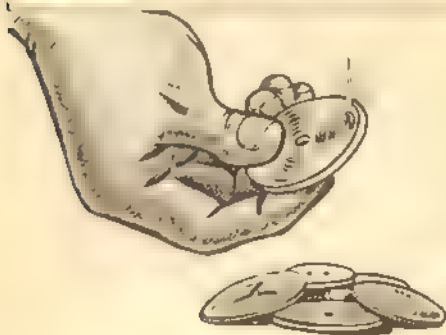

Grass will be legalized by 1984, so besides bars there'll be Grass Pads. And, of course, the traditional cocktail lounge band will be established.

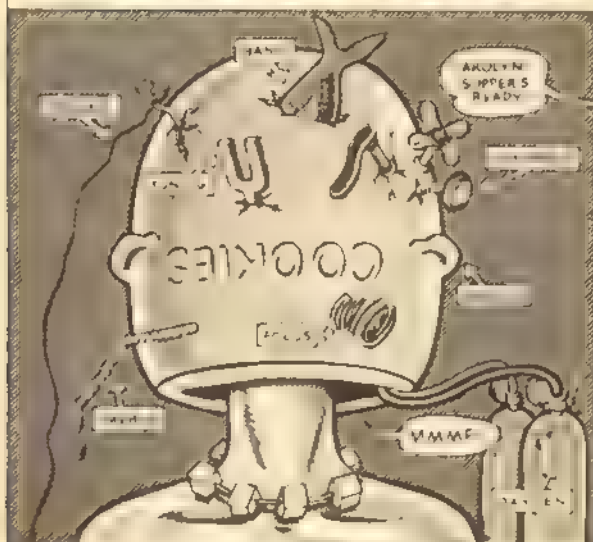

Instead of plastic discs or cassettes record a voice on a beaded mala which protect and maintain the vibrations which perform the
